

Mussolini Cites History As Matteotti Parallel

ROME, Nov. 10.—Benito Mussolini is building for the greatness of Italy in an effort to duplicate the work of Caesar in ancient Rome. But Mussolini would do it with the swords of the legions replaced by picks and shovels, trowels and sledges, hammers and saws.

In an exclusive interview with the United Press, the first he has given since the recent attempt on his life in Bologna, Il Duce ranged through his dreams of an Italy restored to the work completed or in hand at the moment. He spoke of the new mercantile marine and talked merrily of the latest effort to kill him—to stop in the midst of it with a gesture toward his wall bust of Caesar. "My inspiration," he said.

Democracy Discussed

The interview took place in the Chigi Palace and lasted forty-five minutes. It veered from Mussolini's hopes for early abolition of censorship in Italy through a discussion of democracy and dictatorships, and dwelt for a moment on his plans for an Italian liner that would be the fastest in the world, capable of speeding at forty knots an hour from Italy to New York in four or five days.

Reverting to history, he said in part:—

"During the ancient Roman republic there were sixty-four dictators, which means that there was a dictatorship every four or five years.

"Sulla had a time greatly resembling ours. He, too, had his Matteotti (a Socialist deputy murdered more than two years ago) in the person of Cinna, who was murdered.

"The populace was so angered at Sulla that he resolved to re-establish his prestige and went on a campaign in the East. He returned, and was received in great triumph in the Roman Forum, although he was just a private citizen. The populace acclaimed him. "Yes, dictators sprang up periodically in those glorious days."

ITALY WARNED BY PARIS TO CEASE PLOT HOAXES

PARIS, Nov. 10 (By U. P.).—Emphasizing for the first time the danger to Franco-Italian relations contained in the plots and counterplots in which Col. Ricciotti Garibaldi was alleged to have been a principal, the French government issued a communique which revealed that this phase of the situation had been mentioned to Ambassador Avezana, who represents Italy in Paris.

Garibaldi was charged with taking pay from Fascist police in exchange for information he was able to obtain of the plans of anti-Fascists in France.

BOY ASSAILANT OF DUCE BURIED WITH "TRAITORS"

BOLOGNA, ITALY, Nov. 10 (By U. P.).—Fifteen-year-old Anteo Zamboni was buried today in the "Traitors' Camp," alongside the bodies of deserters who were executed during the war. The boy's body was borne from the morgue in a hearse, but without attendants.

A week ago Sunday, Anteo fired at Premier Mussolini here. He was killed by a mob.

Police Search For Two Maniacs Still at Large

ELLENVILLE, N. Y., Nov. 10.—

With two of the four convicts who escaped from the Napanoch Institution for Mental Defectives captured, state police, aided by New York detectives, today renewed the hunt for the two men still at large.

Christopher Mammanno and Frank Rome, the men sought, were sentenced for first degree murder and robbery, respectively.

According to Assistant Superintendent Hoffman at Napanoch, it is believed the pair still at large were the leaders in the escape and had made arrangements, through outside help, to get away in an automobile that was reported seen near the prison late Saturday night. A posse has been organized.

Exploding Still Causes Arrest of Mother of Five

The crash of a five-gallon still as it exploded in the bathroom of her home at 1053 Simpson St., The Bronx, according to police, resulted today in the arrest of Mrs. Yetta Landau, 34, mother of five children, on a charge of violating the Volstead act.

Tenants in the apartment building were alarmed by the explosion, but police from the Simpson Street station prevented a panic.

Detectives found what they allege was the wreckage of a still. The bathroom and windows in the adjoining rooms were smashed. Mrs. Landau and her children, the eldest of whom are 14-year-old twin girls, were frightened to tears.

CALLS POST RATES A LOSS

ATLANTIC CITY, Nov. 10.—Increased postal rates instead of eliminating a deficit will cause a greater loss, Richard Lee, general counsel of the National Council of Business Mail Users, told the annual meeting of the National Advertisers' Association in the Ambassador Hotel.

Winds Bring Winter To City Today, Says Weather Bureau

High winds are expected to bring winter to New York today on the heels of a warm, spring-like rain and fog that seriously delayed shipping.

The Weather Bureau predicts that the thermometer will fall below 40 degrees above zero tonight, for the second time this season.

Suspect Nabbed Lifting 18th Watch

If Dominick Battaglia, 18, of 177 Atkins Place, Brooklyn, had wanted only one watch, he might have got away with an alleged burglary at the jewelry store of E. Weiss, 17 2d Ave., early today.

Instead, he loafed around, and just as he was picking up his eighteenth timepiece, according to the police, Detective Herman Meyers passed.
